

Jane Colby

From: [REDACTED]
To: <jane.colby@tymestrust.org>
Sent: 06 September 2004 07:02
Subject: jane

Hi,

[REDACTED] passed the info on. Sometimes things get changed!

Yesterday, Jane One Click [REDACTED] You can't always believe everything you read on Jane's site. I'm surprised you haven't realised that yet. This lady changes things herself to incriminate others. I'm off to the lawyer this morning. We'll start low key.

We do not know the source. We can't even trust the source if she were to tell me, as she lies. And she changes things. I wrote a much longer version for another site.

I know, from her copious emails lately, that she has cc'd at least one to you! What do I make of that?

I trust you are keeping an eye on Ben. With mum clearly not in touch with reality, and so hostile and threatening people, it is important that she is not like that at home. I trust that if you sense that she is, you will alert Social Services in Ealing. I have, from her correspondence and activities, an idea of what ails her but as a professional will not disclose. If you are a friend, she may have told you. You may know if she is on medication. It's clearly not working at the moment. Her state of mind must affect Ben. If so, he needs support.

If I go to court, one problem is that she will almost certainly plead insanity. Then they may take Ben into care. I'm not sure I want that. I want her friends to help her get better help for her own problems.

This has nothing to do with ME. This lady needs good friends who will help her now!

BW

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED] Health Psychologist

For information about ME and CFS, see:
[REDACTED]

Emails posted with help from Hire Intelligence London SW. If I have not replied to a request within 48 hours, your email may not have reached me. Please resend.

This e-mail message is confidential and for use by the addressee only. If the message is received by anyone other than the addressee, please return the message to the sender, by replying to it and then delete the message from your computer.